GEORGE W MARTIN got out a better holiday edition than any of his contemporaries across the Missouri lime. The day is not far distant as predicted in these columns some weeks ugo that the Kansas City Gazeffe would soon be the chief Republiese newspaper in this section of the West.

THE Kanses City Times in its big Sunday paper holds up to view the immense interests the ten wholesale house of Kansas City have in Kanwas. Two Leavenworth Times wants to know why the interior jobbers do not appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission for relief. This commission is about as potent as a mired's most of the vintage of 1892, and besides an appeal to a higher au thority has already been made and a favorable decision handed down, which will be embodied soon after the legislature meets.

A LITTLE girl in shabby dress was greatly excited and apparently in high gies. A gentleman stopped and enquired the cause of her exubecause of spirits and got the follow-"O paw and maw are a.gote' to have a chicken for Christ mess dimner and I'm to have the neck and feet and all the sweet potato skim." This illustriates what the fusion Democrats will get for their efforts in the late political campaign.

Ture Salina people and papers are making a great fight for more equitable freight rates. Salina folks pull ingether. Abriene folks do not.—

be expected that there will be any ielay in the organization of either bouse. The fusionists have a majority in the senate and the Republicane will make no attempt to capture the organization or to retard it. In the house the Republicans have a clear majority, and all fair-minded people will admit that it is an bonestly attained majority. It is not so certain that there will not be trouble is the house but still the probability is small, and the Republicans are likely to organize it without trouble, Ever since the election both parties have been scoring for partisan advantage, but this in the nature of of the session, and all parties and

The question of equitable freight rates has received due consideration in this paper heretofore, and as it has been treated thoroughly and exhaustively it will not be necessary to repeat any of the arguments peretofore adduced. Suffice it to eay, however, that this question for prompt consideration. The people have reason to expect that the evils and discriminations attendant considered carefully and corrected nonestly. > There may be something done in the way of changing the laws in referance to the collection of debts based upon real estate mortgages, and the lowering by statute legal rates of interest. At the present time the neessity for "relief" is not so keenly felt as it was two years ago, or at least it is not so fully expressed There may be some evils connected with the mortgage laws, but extreme caution should be practiced in all things that affect the credit of the state. The present law that enables a creditor to obtain judgment against should be amended. When a mortgage company loans a certain sum of money on a piece of property, that property should be made by law sufficient to cover all obligations that may accrue against it by reason of foreclosure. This is just and proper, but aside from it, we can see no necessity for a change in the mortgage

A DISCUSSION is going on in one of the magazines whether or not it is proper for women to tell their ages the least injured by Deacon White. It is hard to see what difference it makes whether women tell their age or not, and it is equally hard to tell why a woman should be averse to telling what her age is There is no law against being old or young, but of the year this same Deacon White it is a breech of good morals to lie about one's age. on staple groceries, that every reta dealer would be forced to buy his staple from the nearest jobber. To do th they went before the state board and de manded a difference between carloac and less than carload rates on sugar, cof-fee, canned goods, and beans of from 2 to 34 cents per hundred.

The railroad commission practically Atchison and Leavenworth, who would nave been injured fully as much as the than those of Kansas City, secured a temporary injunction in the district temporary injunction in the district court, and after thorough investigation and voluminous testimony had been and voluminous teatment injunction per-taken the court made the injunction per-manent. The interior jobbers have appealed the case to the supreme court of the state, where it is thought there can be but one decision -a confirmation of the decree of the lower court.

Kansas City, under ordinary circumstances, would be only indirectly inter-

stances, would be only indirectly inter-ested in this fight, as there has been no time, had it become necessary, when Kansas City merchants could not have protected themselves and the interests of their customers in Kansas, thro the United States courts. The terior jobbers, through the press and by circulars misrepresenting the true facts in the case, have attempted to arouse the prejudices of the Kansas retail dealers against Kansas City. They have, however, been unsuccessful, and Kansas City today enjoys a greater share of Kansas trade than ever before. Why should she not? This is the neares large market to the state; it is to Kans City's policy to secure as low freight and out of the state what is bought here, on both carloads and less than car-load fr ight, as possible; and the people to whom Kansas City sells and from whom the city buys have secured the benefits of the labors here in that direc-Knowing this to be true, they are going to the market most advantage easy to forgive the Times for its selfshness and dense ignorance. Our side of this case has been fully presented heretofore and there is no secessity for repeating it now, but we will be pardoned for taking the space to show the weakness and selfshuess of the enemies of Kansas From time out of mind Kansas City newspapers have procisimed the great love they and their town have for Kansas, and yet we have it right here from the Times that it is the same interest a farmer has for a hog; namely, that which shall yield him pecuniary gain. Mark the difference wherewith it treats Atchison and Leavenworth, and note its fawning over them because they raked chest nuts out of the fire for it. And yet we all know that Kansas City if it could would be only too glad of the chance to squeeze out of existence the jobbing interests of Atchison and L-avenworth even as it has at tempted to destroy those of the interior cities-only it could not, not even when it had the support of two combines fight for the interests of their "customers" (victims); well Kansas City proposes to protect her 'customers" by driving all competition out of the field. That is, if she can; but the temper of the people of the state of Kansas is not now such as to warrant an attempt, even by so cowardly, insolent, thick-headed and selfish a lot of wholesale merchants as do business in Kansas City. Take away the interests of Kanses City that belong on the west side of the state line and the town would not amount to the proverbial hill of beans. St. Joe would be a metropolis alongside of it, all because the business men of St. Joe are smarter than those of Kansas City.

Probably the greatest falsehood contained in the above is that which says the trade of Atchison and Leavenworth is affected more than Kansas City's. The trade of the two first named does not conflict with ours enough to be taken into account, but Kansas City men are met with every where, and the only reason why they do not do more business is because of the selfish and narrow policy of the houses they represent. Kansas City could get most of the business now going to St Louis and Chicago if her strong Cleveland supporter and it is merchants only had sense enough to not probable that the old man will reach out and get it and let alone the business interests of this state. They will have to do the latter benceforth whether they like it or not, for the legislature will see to it.
